The Stages South of Alexandria.

ON the first of October next the Mail Stage will commence running as follows between Alexandria and Petersburg in Virginia:

Will leave Alexandria every day at 6 o'clock in the evening, and arrive at Dumfries by 5 in the morning—Leave Dumfries at 6 and arrive at Fredericksburg by 11 1-2 in the morning—Leave Fredericksburg at 12 (noon) and arrive at Richmond the next morning by 6—Leave Richmond at 6 1-2 and arrive at Petersburg by 11 1-2 in the morning.

Returning, will leave Petersburg every day at 12 1-2 P. M. and arrive at Alexandria in the same time. This stage will carry no more than 2 passengers on any account whatever, and not more than 14 lb. of baggage can be allowed to each passenger.

An Accommodation Stage between Alexandria and Petersburg will also commence running at the same time, every other day throughout the year, without regard to Sundays, and will travel only in the day time.—On this line it is the intention of the owners to study the wishes and the convenience of passengers. Still, however, regard must be had to time—Going south from Alexandria they will breakfast at Occoquan, dine at Stafford Court-House, and lodge at Fredericksburg—The next day will breakfast at the Bowling Green, dine at the Oaks, and lodge at Richmond. And on the third day will breakfast at the Half-Way house and dine at Petersburg.

Returning, will dine at the Half-Way house and lodge at Richmond. Early in the morning, breakfast at the Oaks, dine at the Bowling Green, and lodge at Fredericksburg. Next morning, will breakfast at Stafford court house, dine at Occoquan, and lodge at Alexandria.

The owners on this line too, have to request that passengers will be as moderate as possible in the quantity of their baggage, as any thing more than a small trunk or parcel which will go within the body of the stage will be an extra charge.

Extract of a letter from a respectable merchant in the Havanna, dated Sept. 12.

"We have near ONE HUNDRED American vessels in port! Three weeks ago there were but four or five? What is the meaning of all this? For myself, I am confounded with astonishment. No arguments which I have heard can in the least do away the unfavorable impressions the sight occasions. If a proportionate number have gone to other parts, what an immensity of property you must have now afloat; and how contradictory this to the ostensible objects of your embargo. If the property for which these vessels are now ostensibly dispatched had been really here, why have they been so long delayed? Surely the present times, those which have occasioned the embargo, do not justify this delinquency. The real truth is—the property is not here—not for one twentieth of the number of vessels which have been sent, as the result will shew, and a host of people have therefore been suddenly let loose who could not possibly have had any other object or expectation than the procuration of freights and passengers from the merchants of this country, or from the French who are supposed to be going off with their property

"In so absurd a light does the appearance of the present American fleets strike the people of this country, that they seriously say, it must be occasioned by one or two circumstances.

"One is—that the permissions are founded on an electioneering manoeuvre, to secure by such concessions, the good will of the citizens, against the approaching election; or, that the government are now desirous, since the Spanish revolution, to get as much property from here as they can, and then take part with France, against England and this country!

"If they are told that the permissions were to be closed finally on the 12th of August, it avails nothing whilst they reply, that it was known the permissions were not to be permanent and therefore why have the vessels been, to so great a degree, kept back?

"When speaking of the intentions of the embargo to preserve our property and that our vessels are not permitted to bring any article out, they say—What! are your vessels of no value!—Is the property which it is expected they take home, of no amount? Your largest and best vessels are now out (this is a fact) and in this island alone, there cannot be less than one hundred and fifty; worth, at least, a million of dollars; and the property which could be conveyed in them, if it were here, worth many more. Have the French and British ceased to capture? The injury done to the American character is considerable. The vast number of evasions and smugglers, which the embargo has created, is surprising. Surprising, perhaps not; for if in ordinary times when trade is free and unfettered, the laws will be evaded, how much more when the measures are really so unpopular and oppressive to a great proportion of the community. For some days after the last influx of American vessels, the quays and custom houses were every morning covered with all kinds of provisions which had been landed the preceding night!

"As to vessels "in distress" the trick became so common that the government humanely considered that an entire detention of them would be acceptable!

"Have you had a great drought in America? for never were vessels known to come out with such scanty supplies of water. One would suppose your wells and rivers had been dried up.

"The risk of the returning vessels and cargoes will be encreased. If the property cannot be clearly proved to have been here, it is as liable as ever to capture. The French will invariably take them, as coming, now, 'from an enemy's port.' Bonaparte's argument that during an embargo, we have no business out, will, at this stage of it, be more strictly in point.

"The door, however, you will say, is to be hereafter,—is now closed entirely. True, and others will speedily be opened to others, wherein you will hereafter find it difficult to enter. Several vessels have already arrived from Jamaica and Providence with dry goods, wines, &c. Two vessels yesterday arrived from Halifax with prisoners, who report that ten or twelve merchantmen were loading there with provisions and lumber to this port. As to provisions the partial deprivation which you have occasioned, has been attended with incalculable benefit to this island, and must to them.

"The Irish potatoe, equal to that of the United States, is now cultivated here in prodigious quantities. The Indian corn of this soil has always been remarkably fine, and will now of course be encreased tenfold in quantity. The wheat and flour of Mexico, very little inferior, if at all, to the Mississippi, will now be greatly promoted; and whilst a peace may be preserved with England, they will smile at your restrictions. As yet they do not see you much disposed for a dignified retirement within yourselves. Should you however at last fall into that 'Otium cum dignitate,' be assured that your slumbers and your dreams will not be interrupted!

"We have no additional news direct from Spain—but a very creditable account by an American captain arrived from St. Thomas, who is known to several gentlemen here, who says advices were received there (and probably therefore you have it before this) via Barbadoes and Gibraltar, that the Spaniards had succeeded in driving every armed Frenchman out of the country or defeated them entirely—and that Murat was a prisoner, &c. He [the captain] has been examined before the governor and every credit is attached to the report; which has also some other particulars, but the above is the substance."

FOREIGN.

(VIA BOSTON.)

MADRID, August 5.

The notice of the surrender of Dupont occasioned the greatest consternation here. Three French divisions have left this place—one in the night of the 29th of July; and another on the night of the 30th, in which went king Joseph; and the third on the 31st after stripping the city, spiking the cannon, &c. so that they have no hopes of speedily returning.

The patriot general Castanos is immediately expected here.

CADIZ, August 9.

Lord Collingwood breakfasted with our governor yesterday, and was received with all possible honors.

Yesterday arrived from England, a number of merchant vessels.

Biscay has declared for Ferdinand VII.

Many Irishmen have arrived, and intend to serve as volunteers in our army.

We learn, that the Diplomatic Characters at Madrid, such as the Ambassadors from Austria, from Russia, and from the United States, have not acknowledged King JOSEPH.

From a Seville Gazette, of August 16.

REUS, (near Barcelona) July 25.

A considerable number of Spanish troops have arrived from Minorca and Majorca, and have marched to reinforce the patriots at Sarragossa.

Several French soldiers have deserted from the fort Montjui, and said others would desert if they could be sure of good treatment. In consequence of this, the patriot general issued a proclamation, promising them that they should be well received.

It is said that General Le Fevre has been taken prisoner by the Arragonese. Our troops have departed for Barcelona with the greatest dispatch.—We expect the fate of the French garrison remaining there will be soon decided.

The French General Duhesme has left Barcelona incognito, and has not been heard of since.

REUS, July 27.

At the setting off of the mail, it was reported that the French General in Chief Duhesme was made prisoner and carried to the Castle of Cordova. It was also reported as certain, that the French army of about 5,000 which had gone from Barcelona towards Ostalric (a strong place, between Gerona and Barcelona) were closely pressed. The truth is that on Monday morning, there had not one French soldier returned to Barcelona—that Duhesme's driver had returned very badly wounded, but without his master, and it is added that the chaise was perforated with balls. Yesterday orders were sent by our new General, the marquis of Palacois to all the towns, to send to Tarragona all the horses and mules they could furnish, and the troops that were in that place set off to day; it is believed they go directly to Barcelona.

SEVILLE, August 16.

Yesterday left this city for Madrid, their excellencies Don Francis Xavier Castanos, our worthy general in chief and Don Andres Murano y las Casas, one of the members of our Supreme Junta, who follow the van guard of our army, which we believe must before this, have entered Madrid.

The Portuguese have lately had some engagements with the troops of general Loison's division, in which they killed 100—took 250 prisoners, 5 baggage waggons and all the papers of the army; two pieces of artillery and one furnace. The Portuguese report that in the province of Tras los montes there does not remain a single Frenchman, and that they (the Portuguese) have in that province 7 regiments of the line; 3 of cavalry; 32 pieces of artillery; plenty of ammunition and all the peasantry in arms. [Badajoz is a frontier town of Spain in Estramadura.]

REMARKS.

Although the emperor Bonaparte has called upon his subjects to rise en masse, with an apparent expectation of reducing the Spaniards to slavery, by the sword, it is very obvious that the French armies in Spain, who know the disposition of the people and their resources, best, have despaired of ever seeing that event accomplished. Bessieres would never have ravaged the country near Benevento and Leon, nor would JOSEPH BONAPARTE have plundered the churches and palaces of Madrid, if they had not abandoned the idea of making Spain their own.

In Egypt, in Italy and in Portugal, the British have met the French and have conquered.

If it be true, as is stated, that the French are completely subdued in Spain and Portugal, it is probable the next object of the Spaniards will be to fortify the passes of the Pyrenees, and by keeping a considerable force on the frontier, to prevent the French from again ravaging their countay and occupying their fortresses.

We doubt the correctness of the verbal reports, that Germany and Italy had actually declared war against France, and that hostilities had ensued. But we have no doubt, that such an event will soon take place. The rudeness and impertinent officiousness of Andreossi had become so disgusting to the emperor Francis that he is stated to have given him unequivocal tokens of displeasure.

(Bost. Rep.)

BY THE LAST MAIL.

PORTSMOUTH, (N. H.) Oct. 1.

Another arrival!—Arrived here on Sunday last, the ship George capt. Greenough, 30 days from Demarara, with a cargo of 560 hhds of rum and molasses. This cargo will pay a revenue of 7000 dollars and upwards to the government.

It is a fact worthy of notice that all the vessels which have sailed from this port, for more than a year past, for the West Indies, not one of them has met with interruption from either French or English cruizers, and we believe the same remark will apply generally to other ports in the United States. This shows it was not necessary to have embargoed our trade to the West-Indies, but if it had been left open it would have afforded us a safe market for our Lumber, Beef, Fish, Flour, &c. instead of their perishing on hand or furnishing business for sheriffs to sacrifice them for a quarter part of their former value.

SALEM, October 4.

We hear that Gen. Embargo captured a vessel at the Crowninshield wharf on Sunday night, with 550 barrels of flour on board just as the sails were hoisting upon her for a supposed distant expedition. The men fled and the property we presume is fast under the government keys.

NEW-YORK, October 7.

INTERESTING.

The following letter from a gentleman in Madrid to his friend in this city, contains a more minute account of Joseph Bonaparte's entry into Madrid, and his retreat therefrom, than any we have yet seen.

MADRID, August 14th, 1808.

"This serves to give you a sketch of those great occurrences that have within the three months past taken place in these provinces and Madrid. The great Napoleon has, with a view to regenerate this nation and make the country happy in his own way, quite overshot his mark. The Spaniards unfurled the banners of freedom, and he has already lost one hnndred and fifty thousand men and forty generals in the attempt. Fifty different battles have been gained by the Patriots in Arragon, Valencia, Murcia, Andelbsia, Saint Ander, Leon and Castilla. The heroes of Marengo, Austerlitz, Jena, and Eylau; a great division of the Imperial Guards, Mamelukes, and Curasiers; marshal Moncey, Bessieres, Dupont, Lefebre, Vedel, &c. &c. (those invincibles) have been obliged to lay down their arms, laurels, and great and small stars of honor at the feet of the Spanish armies, consisting principally of unorganized peasantry armed with knives, lances and side arms—those that had muskets threw them aside without discharging when they attacked their enemy. Joseph Napoleon entered Madrid the 21st of last month, was proclaimed king on the 25th, and on the 31st all of a sudden left this court for Burgos, taking all his troops with him, and all other French people that lived here followed, as also several grandees, ministers, and a number of other Spaniards of his party.

"It is supposed that the king left this for fear of being cut off by some Spanish armies drawing near the road to France and the frontiers. The French and Spanish individuals followed for fear of being murdered if they staid behind, which certainly would have been the case with many. The whole was performed in 60 hours, and such was the confusion that they left artillery, ammunition, baggage, and every thing that was heavy, behind, something similar to their flight from Egypt. They took the roads to Burgos, a town about half way between this and France, and each one was left to make the best of his way without order or discipline. They fought with one another on the road, robbed, burnt and murdered as they went. The inhabitants were and are overjoyed at this event, because the French had strongly fortified themselves on some elevated parts of the Retiro, from whence more than 100 pieces of heavy artillery and mortars bore down upon us, and kept us in constant awe and fear of destruction. Joseph it is said still remains at Burgos with some troops; other remnants of the French armies are making a stand in Arragon, on the borders of Biscay, and at Barcelona and Figueras; but the nation already covered with glory, are determined not to sheath their swords as long as one enemy is within their limits. All the southern armies are marching in close pursuit of the French, and others from Asturias, Galicia and Biscay are meeting at the frontiers. Ferdinand the seventh is the sovereign of every Spanish breast; and will, although absent at Valeny in France, he was proclaimed king in Madrid on the 24th instant with great solemnity.

Latest from London.

By the arrival last evening of the ship Flora, from London, papers of that city to the 17th of August have been received.—They state that the government schooner Hope, Woodward, had touched at Falmouth (Eng.) in 23 days from the Chesapeake, and landed Mr. Atwater, the United States messenger, with dispatches to Mr. Pinckney the American minister at the court of London. Such was the caution observed by captain Woodward, that he did not bring his vessel to an anchor, but barely touched at Falmouth, put Mr. Atwater ashore as soon as possible, and then stood on for L'Orient, to land the notorious swindler and pirate Nathan Haley, who is charged with dispatches to France.

LONDON, August 16.

The dispatches from Sir Charles Cotton announcing the landing of Sir Arthur Wellesly were brought by Mr. Basilico, the messenger. He had been sent with dispatches to Sir Arthur at Cork, but the general had sailed from thence before he reached Cork. Basilico therefore proceeded after him to the coast of Spain.

Sir Arthur, as we stated yesterday, landed at Figuera on the 1st. By an article however, from Coimbra, in the Coimbra Gazette of the 28th ult. it appears that he appeared off Figuera on the 26th. Baffling winds, however, we suppose prevented him from landing sooner than the 1st. As soon as the artillery and every other necessary had been landed the general began his march for Lisbon. Private accounts describe the joy with which the troops were received by the Portuguese as excessive. As the boats advanced to the shore, acclamations from the people upon the beach rent the air, and nothing was heard but blessings upon the name of Great Britain, the deliverer of the oppressed. Yesterday evening the following Bulletin was exhibited in the city:—

"Mr. Basilico arrived this morning from off the Tagus, which he left on the 3d inst. Generals Wellesley and Spencer had formed a junction, and landed all their troops.

"A summons had been sent to Junot who had proposed to capitulate on certain conditions, which, however, his brother-officer, gen. Laborde, would not consent to.

"The Portuguese were in arms, and had joined the British in great numbers.

"Junot had not been able to correspond with France for three weeks."

The above bulletin was not, we believe, circulated by the authority of government; the substance of the intelligence, which government had received, we published in our paper of yesterday—it stated that sir Arthur effected his junction with general Spencer on the 3d—the latter, we suppose, landed at a point more southerly than Figueira—our Oporto letter asserted that he had debarked at St. Ubes—but this is wholly incompatible with the account of his having joined sir Arthur Wellesley on the 3d.

...Utes is a considerable distance from the ...ce where that general landed—it is to the ...uth of the Tagus and of Lisbon, and not ...re than twenty-one miles distant from it. ...Thus Junot had already been summoned ...d had proposed to capitulate upon condi... ...ns to which general Laborde would not ...sent to, we do not believe. Sir Arthur ...uld not summon him till he got near e... ...ugh to commence an attack upon him.— ...at the Portuguese were joining sir Ar... ...n great numbers is correct. Before ...effected his landing, they had march... ...m Coimbra and driven the French ...Loison before them from Pombal and ...ira. These troops would of course join ...Arthur Wellesley—but we are ignorant ...their force; it is said that they amount ...eleven battalions, about 8000 men. The ...ench under Loison were taking the road ...Santarem, from whence they would in ...probability be conveyed in feluccas to ...sbon. Of Junot's force and movements ...have no very accurate or recent accounts ...Sir Charles Cotton states him to be only ...000 strong—but we suspect that he is ...onger. His army has been estimated at ...000: but these are distributed in differ... ...garrisons—1500 men at Cascaeis—500 ...Belem—a division at the Old Town ...another at fort Bugio——besides the ...sion stationed in Lisbon to keep ...people down. He is said to have re... ...ly landed the Russian sailors, about ...00 men, to garrison the fortresses. O... ...r accounts state that the Russians have ...ded, and are throwing up works opposite ...rt Julien, with the view of covering their ...t, should the French make any attempt ...attack them. But this seems not very ...obable, Junot has enough to do without ...ding to the number of his enemies by at... ...king the Russians. It is reported that ...has marched out of fort St. Julien with ...00 men, this does not seem credible fort ...Julien is a fort of immense conse... ...nce to him, and he would hardly ...ve it with a small force in it, unless ...thought himself strong enough to ...w out his army and risk a battle with ...English. An article from Lisbon, in ...Coimbra paper, speaks of his being in ...xpectation of a reinforcement of 20,000 ...n, but with a sneer, it adds, that "as ...nch passports are not so current in Spain ...they were, it is probable they may not ar... ...ve in time to assist at the Tragedy of Pro... ...tion, in which its authors are so soon a... ...to make their appearance."

...having speculated upon the probable a... ...unt of Junot's force, which, rating it at ...highest, cannot be more than 17,000 men, ...t us see what sir Arthur Wellesley has ...under him—

| | |
|---|---|
| His own force is | 10,000 |
| Gen. Spencer's about | 4,500 |

...It is supposed that general Anstruther's di... ...vision may reach the Tagus time enough to ...join him, it is about 5,000 men—the ma... ...tics from sir Charles Cotton's fleet, are at ...least 1000—the whole British force would ...thus be between 20 and 21,000 men—the ...Portuguese force would swell it to upwards ...30,000. As Sir Arthur began his march ...wards Lisbon on the 1st, it is probable he ...uld be near enough to commence his ope... ...tions by the 7th or 8th. Figueira is about ...70 miles from Lisbon. The next accounts ...from Portugal will probably announce Sir ...Arthur's arrival in the environs of the capi... ...l—Of the eventual success of his opera... ...tions we have no doubt; but it is scarcely to ...be expected that Junot will surrender with... ...out an obstinate resistance.

ORDERS IN COUNCIL.

The Lords of the Committee of council ...for Trade and Foreign Plantations, having ...authorised us to make public the following ...answers to certain questions proposed by us ...to their Lordships, we publish them for the ...information of all whom they may concern:

THOS. BARING,
A. GLENNIE,
THOS. MULLETT.

London 15th Aug.

QUESTION.

1. His majesty's order in council of the ...4th of July, 1808, having ordered, that all ...hostilities against Spain on the part of his ...Majesty shall immediately cease, and that ...the Blockade of all the ports of Spain, ex... ...cept such as may be still in possession, or ...under the control of France, shall be forth... ...with raised?

Can an American vessel proceed from a port in the United States of America, with a cargo, the produce of the United States, or colonial produce, direct to any port of Spain or Portugal, not being in the possession of the enemies of Great Britain, and return back to a port in the U. States direct, with a cargo the growth or produce of Spain or Portugal, without being liable to seizure or condemnation, under the orders in council of the 11th and 25th of Nov. 1807, and the several acts of parliament passed to carry them into effect.

ANSWER.

American vessels may proceed from a port in the U. S. of America, with a cargo, the produce of the U. S. or colonial produce, provided such produce be not the produce of the enemy's colonies, direct to any port in Spain or Portugal; such port nor being in the possession or under the control of the enemies of G. Britain, and return to a port in the U. States direct, with a cargo the growth or produce of Spain or Portugal.

QUESTION.

Can an American vessel having entered a port in Spain previous to the commencement of hostilities by the Patriots against the enemy, proceed from such port with a cargo the growth and produce of Spain, direct to a port in the U. States, without being subject to seizure and condemnation as above?

ANSWER.

An American vessel having entered a port in Spain, previous to the commencement of hostilities by the patriots against the enemy, may proceed from such port with a cargo the growth and produce of Spain, direct to a port in the U. S. without being liable to seizure and condemnation as above, unless the vessel entered in breach of the orders in council.

HAMBURG, July 29.

We are assured that intelligence was received at Copenhagen, on the 23d, that the Russian general Buxhoyden had surrounded and captured general Klingspor, with 12,000 men.

A rumor was also in circulation, that the alliance between Sweden and England is interrupted.

The day before yesterday, the Spanish officers and soldiers at the military depot at Altona and the vicinity, took the oath of allegiance to their new king, after the new constitution had been read to them. Nothing was heard but acclamations of "long live the king, don Joseph Napoleon!" The French general Dupas gave a grand entertainment to the officers. After dinner the health of the new king was drank, and repeated several times with unbounded applause.

Alexandria Daily Gazette.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 11.

The St. Michaels arrived at Baltimore on Saturday last from L'Orient, which she left the 2hst August, bringing dispatches both from Mr. Pinckney and Gen Armstrong.

The contents will doubtless be made known to Congress, which is soon to meet, with any further communication which may be previously received. In the mean time there is reason to believe that no final decision had been expressed by either of the belligerent governments, on the appeal made by the president to the justice & policy of rescinding their illegal edicts, under the authority vested in him by the act of congress, to suspend in whole or in part the embargo laws. Notwithstanding the manifest interest and sound policy which plead with France, to concur in the equitable views of the United States, her infatuated attachment to the particular system she has adopted against her enemy discourages a reliance, at least on her setting the example of changing it.

It is understood, that appearances were at first favorable to the expectation that the British government would yield to the unobjectionable arrangement contemplated by the President of a revocation of the orders of council as they regard the U. States, and of the embargo as regards Great Britain; and that there was moreover a disposition indicated to resume the affair of the Chesapeake, with a view to some effective step towards its accommodation, particularly the restoration of the seamen still detained in captivity, to which it was admitted there could be no reasonable objection. At a later date, the apparent disposition to concur in the contemplated arrangement had undergone a change. Difficulties were started as unexpected as they were irrelative and inauspicious. Whether further explanation and reflection would lead to the result due to the fair and friendly views of the United States must soon be known. As the offer to remove the embargo as relates to England on her revoking her orders as they relate to the U. States, leaving the embargo in force as to France if she adheres to her illegal decrees, takes away absolutely the sole pretext on which the British orders are expressly founded, to wit: the acquiescence of the U. States in the French decree; and as her wishes would be gratified with the whole of our trade in case France refused to repeal her decrees, or a removal of all illegal obstructions to a general commerce would take place, in case France agreed to repeal them, England may still be expected to accede to the views disclosed by the President, if her own views do not now forsake the original and avowed object of her orders, in favor of some distinct and unfriendly policy towards this country.
